2006 PROGRAMS AND ACTIVITIES

I. Program: Independent Media

1.1. MEDIA LAW REFORM

- FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

Globe International has initiated and been actively advocating freedom of information legislation since we have started “Right to know: Freedom of Information” program under finding of MFOS- OSF, the US Embassy and AUSAID in 2002.

Despite lobbies of the civil society and international organizations, the Mongolian government is delaying a passage of Freedom of Information Law. D.Munkhburen, GI executive director worked in the Working Group of the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs to draft FOI Law.

In October 2006, the Cabinet of Ministers discussed the final draft of the law. Unfortunately, it was postponed by reason that it should be discussed in its complexity along with laws on information security and information technology and Law on the amendments to the Law on Media Freedom. .

However, Globe International regularly advocates the freedom of information law through media and events organized by other NGOs such as Freedoms of Information and Media, school of young leaders, Zorig Foundation (January and November 2006), Responsible Media, training for journalists, Human Rights Commission, October 19,2006, Information service of the government, Public Forum “Government Transparency”, OSF, December 07, 2006 etc.

- STATE SECRECY AND FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

Globe International completed the 6-month project aimed at encouraging the state secrecy legislation reform, which involved a full analysis of the deficiencies of the present state secrecy legislation in comparison with the similar laws of other countries in transition and a new draft of the state secrecy law that is consistent with the international standards of freedom of information.

The present project was a continuation of our activities on media legal framework reform. In 2002 Globe International in cooperation with Article 19, the London based international organization produced a report titled “Mongolia in Transition: Legal Analysis on the Mongolian legislation Affecting Freedoms of Expression and Information”. Along with other conclusions, the report noted: “A key problem in Mongolia is the lack of openness of public bodies”. Chapter 7 of the report devoted to freedom of information and state secrecy legislation.

Results

The project organised 16 events such as working meetings, public discussions and round table and involved 192 persons in total. As results of the project the followings are available:

1. Draft law consistent with the international freedom of expression standards, is available in English and Mongolian. The final draft law was submitted to the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs (MJHA)
2. Call for Change addressed to the Members of the Parliament was adopted by the round table participants and sent to the Parliament, Government and State Intelligence Authority.
3. Report entitled “State Secrecy and Freedom of Information’ is available in English and Mongolian. The report includes:
  - a. Report on comparative legal study, which analysed Mongolian state secrecy legislation and compared with 11 laws of foreign countries
  - b. Report on the instigate study on possibilities of the Mongolian citizens to access information, which involved 13 state institutions and 15 categories of information requested
4. In total 110 individuals gained knowledge on nature and standards of modern requirements of new legislation on state secrecy, project activities and its results through 2 public discussions and round table.

• PUBLIC SERVICE BROADCASTING

Globe International has been active in distributing an idea, concept and principles of the public broadcasting service in Mongolia since its establishment, advocating and lobbying the law.

The Mongolian Parliament ‘Ulsyn Ikh Khural’ passed a Law on Public Radio and Television on January 27, 2005 after 7 years of delay. The Parliament Resolution # 103 on the implementation of the Media Freedom Law was issued on 28 August 1998 and provided for the dissolution of state-owned broadcasting and re-structuring it into public service. The Law on Public Radio and TV came into force on 1 July 2005. The former Authority of Mongolian National Radio and TV was dissolved and the new public broadcaster is named Mongolian National Broadcasting (MNB) and registered at the Ministry of Justice and Home Affairs on February 8, 2006.

PSB Monitoring

Globe International has been monitoring the process of transformation since the PRTV law became valid and it is a part of our free expression violation monitoring project funded by Open Society Forum, Mongolia and OSI Media Network Programme, and the monitoring report entitled "On the Road to Public Service Broadcasting" was produced. Globe International introduced the draft report to the meeting, which involved the members of the governing body- National board and staff of MNB, and civil society representatives.

Chapter I of the present report provides background information, chapter II details the most challenging issues of the transition and chapter III includes recommendations to the relevant parties.

Consultancy

Kh.Naranjargal, President of Globe International worked as consultant to the MNB Working Group to draft Code of Ethics.

• MEDIA FREEDOM AND CENSORSHIP

Against Censorship

36 journalists and representatives of human rights NGOs educated on nature and types of censorship through the Round Table: Against Censorship!!!

Globe International in cooperation with ZORIG Foundation organized the round table 'Against Censorship!!!' on May 2nd, 2006, due to the World Press Freedom Day, at the meeting hall of the National Legal Center. During the round table participants were informed of the origin and essence of censorship, its types, its legal environment in Mongolia, journalists in exercising their professional duties. Round table participants discussed and adopted 'A Call to address to the President, Parliament and Government, media owners and Confederation of Mongolian Journalists' to take urgent actions on creating more favorable environment for media freedom, abolish editorial censorship and developing efficient media self-regulation. The organisers of the round table believe that the Call will urge the Mongolian Government to respect journalist's rights to gather and disseminate news without censorship, to efficiently implement the provisions of the National Human Rights Programme, which obliges the Mongolian Government to pass legislation on Freedom of Information and Protection of Confidential Sources, and make amendments to the strict secrecy and defamatory legislation.

Media Freedom. Mongolia Report (October 2005-October 2006)

Globe International first ever produced this report and published in Mongolian and English. The report aims to give the present picture of media freedom and show the abilities of Mongolian journalists to exercise their professional rights and fulfill their duties to the public. The report provides the information on the legal environment and examples of violations of the rights of the media and journalists.

44 representatives of media and civil society contributed to the Media Freedom Report through the Round Table held on October 31, 2006.

Case Studies

Lawyers of Globe International first ever monitored the investigation processes of assaults against journalists and the court decisions on libel and defamation against journalists. The case studies included:

G.Batjav, "Eagle" television(EBC), Ulaanbaatar

Unknown people beat, acted without discipline and damaged two teeth of G.Batjav, a correspondent of "Eagle" television, while he was having lunch in "Aura" restaurant at 12 a.m. on Saturday, November 10, 2005. After that, his car, which was near his apartment was broken and damaged in the night of December 19-20, 2005. The individuals who damaged his car didn't steal anything and didn't require any money or property.

G.Batjav reported on the results of auditing of the branches of the General

Authority of Social Insurance at 9 districts of Ulaanbaatar in 2005 conducted by the City Auditing Authority.

The police stopped the investigation because he pledged to the USA.

B.Tsevegmid, Nomin" television, Erdenet City

On July 6th, 2006, B.Tsevegmid, the editor of Nomin television station in the northern Mongolian province of Orkhon, was beaten at the entrance of her building and had to be hospitalized for treatment. Before being attacked she had received many threats by telephone concerning an investigative television program, "Forbidden to Watch," which covered the Erdenet mining industry employees' privatization vouchers. On June 11th, "Forbidden to watch" aired the fate of privatization vouchers for 9,000 employees of the Erdenet mining industry. After the television program, unknown people threatened her over the phone. The director of the Erdenet brokerage company, which held the vouchers, also warned the journalist, "It is a very complicated issue, you could be killed".

No progresses in the police investigation until now.

G.Dashrentsen, Chief-in-Editor, "Deedsiin khureelen", weekly, Ulaanbaatar

Political reporter G.Dashrentsen, General chief of newspaper "Deedsiin khureelen", was found guilty to crimes of slander (Article 110, Criminal law) and defamation by means of mass media (Article 111, Criminal law) of G.Purevbat, a Buddhist Lama, because of his published article "Movement of black spot by N.Enkhbayar in the state of Mongolia", (#31 (449) newspaper "Deedsiin khureelen" on October, 2005). Thus, the court of Bayanzurkh district charged him to pay a fine of 2 million 167 thousand 500 tugrugs on June 14, 2006.

However, the journalist G.Dashrentsen was freed from punishment after Article 4.4, the Law of Amnesty, was adopted by the State Great Khural in accordance with the eighth centennial anniversary of the establishment of Great Mongolia on June 23, 2006.

D.Ganhuyag, Freelance Journalist

He was considered guilty to the crime on spreading libel to the public by means of mass media (Article 111.2, Criminal law) with the purpose of disgracing, because of publishing his article "Great debt ..., 8 million $ ... O.Tsolmon?!", which related to the matter on the great debt paid by Mongolia to Russia, newspaper "Mongol times" #8 on March, 2005. Thus, he was charged a fine of 3 million tugrugs, equal to 75 times more of the minimum salary, on June 14, 2006. However, the journalist D.Ganhuyag was freed from punishment based on Article 4.4, of the Law of Amnesty adopted by the State Great Khural on June 23, 2006.

Survey on the Court Decisions

Globe International conducted the survey on the usage of civil and criminal defamatory and insult legislation by the Mongolian authorities. The survey covered the courts decisions taken between 2001 and 2005. The Courts reviewed 187 defamation cases in total. Of the 178 civil cases and 9 criminal defamation cases, 151 cases were against media and journalists. 146 of those were civil and 5 were criminal cases.

In comparison, a previous study by the Mongolian Foundation for Open Society (1999-2001) found an average of 31.5 civil and 1.6 criminal cases that were brought forth as defamation cases per year. The results of our study show an average of 29.2 civil and one criminal case that were brought for defamation per year. The number of defamation cases has slightly decreased at 0.9%. The media won 9.6% of the cases and in 59.6% of the cases they lost. In 31.5 % of the cases the plaintiffs and media reconciled. According to the study 92 or 63% of the cases occurred because elected bodies, public officials or public institutions sued (4).

Civil cases:

Information containing public interest and public concern	45
Information accusing the politicians, high officials and public officials in wrong-doings, corruption and bribery	32
Information affecting personal lives	10

Criminal defamation

From 5 criminal cases, MPs were plaintiffs for 4 cases and one case was brought forth by a doctor working in the state-owned hospital. As a result of the courts decisions, two female journalists were arrested and detained from 23 days to 6 months, one case was dismissed and one case which involved 4 journalists resulted in a sentence of a fine. Another case was still ongoing at the end of 2005.

The survey report shows that it is common for elected politicians, authorities and public officials to use criminal defamatory legislation as censorship. Authorities use their power to prevent media criticism and neutralize true information. They do this in order to hide their wrong doings and thus deny the public interest their right to know about their activities.
